As she goes to sleep, we see a visual of her dreams as if they were somehow coming out of her ear. Most of the designs show the perspective of being in the dream, though showing the woman in the images. A few include a step back to seeing the woman asleep with her dreams surrounding her.The designs include a wide variety of subjects and I found that many had a bit of an Asian vibe. There are Koi fish, birds, balloons, oceans, forests, kites, flowers, paper lanterns, peacocks, and even kitties. The designs are quite details and some have smaller and more intricate areas to color.This is what I found while coloring in the book and testing the paper with my coloring medium:94 pages of dream inspired designsPrinted both sides of pagePaper is white, heavyweight, slightly smooth and non-perforatedSewn bindingDesigns merge into the binding. Many of the designs are two-pages spreads with integral elements at the binding area.Alcohol-based markers bleed through the page. If you use this medium, it will leak through and mar the design on the back of the page.Water-based markers, India ink pens and gel pens did not bleed through. Gel pens take longer than usual to dry.Although the paper is slightly smooth to the touch, it still has enough tooth to get decent pigment from colored pencils. I tested both oil and wax based and could easily layer the same or different colors and blend using a pencil style blender stick.

This exquisite new coloring book combines the themes of sleep and dreams with a visual puzzle. A sleeping woman's dream begins leaking out of her ear in the night. Her curious cat clambers into her dream, and as she climbs into the dream to retrieve the cat, her adventure begins...The story follows a series of scenarios where the dreamer follows her cat through deep oceans, mighty mountains, dark forests, bustling cities, and dreamy skies filled with balloons and kites.Filled with original artwork inspired by 19th century Japanese prints and contemporary design, this breathtaking new coloring book sets the reader a challenge - to find the sleeper's cat hiding somewhere in every image. Perfect for sleep therapy and relaxation, float away with the dreamer in this gorgeous new book.
