I'm an even bigger fan of humor, and this has it just oozing out of the pages and onto the floor. There were parts I was laughing so hard my stomach hurt and tears were streaming down my face. The author has a very sharp wit, and the parody was spot on! Knowing how people view humor in their daily lives, I'm hesitant to tell somebody they're going to laugh their butts off if they read this. I hope they do, or at the very least give out a little chuckle or a small tee-hee as they're reading along. Do I recommend this? If you've got a sense of humor and don't take things so seriously (especially those things that aren't meant to be taken seriously), I highly recommend Fifty Shades of Grayish: A Parody. If you're too busy holding only opinions in high regard, go ahead and skip it. But you'll be missing out on a really good time! 5 of 5 people found the following review helpful. oh me oh my.....to funny!! By Chrissy Gail I must first admit that I haven't read the 50 shades books so yeah.....reading a 50 shades parody didn't seem very appealing to me however I was told I should read it I was told it was hilarious so I figures why not. I have to admit I am so happy I did!! This book was so rediculously absurdity funny that it didn't matter that I haven't read the 50 shades books. I have to say I had so many laugh out loud moments my family thought I was losing my mind!! Kudos to the author for my fave character the step dad...I know tourettes is not suppose to be funny, but it kinda really is and the couple of sentences he had were great!! So to sum it all up very very very funny quick read that I highly recommend to anyone with a since of humor that is a tad bit politically incorrect! 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Don't waste your time. By always looking for a bargain What a waste of my time. Take my advice and pass this one by. This attempt at writing is in serious need of a proofreader.

Anna Teal never knew such words as flogger or tea bagging, until she met the wonderful Mr. Grayish. Now she has entered his world of passion and pain. His good looks and hot-air balloon skills win her heart instantly. Her best friend, Kitty, is too self-centered to understand; and her fabulous gay friend, Pedro, is only wanting to have fun.

About the Author Twilight D. Epps is a well unknown author who makes her living by making people pee themselves from laughing so hard. She is a New York Times Bestsellers fan.
