Kelly Hudson, Dan Klein, Arthur Meyer : FUDS: A Complete Encyclofoodia from Tickling Shrimp to Not Dying in a Restaurant before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised FUDS: A Complete Encyclofoodia from Tickling Shrimp to Not Dying in a Restaurant:

I was overjoyed to find there was an entire book, and the intro written by Mario Batali (!) I highly recommend this be read out loud to one or more people taking turns, there is no way you won't laugh until you can't breathe anymore... not a single recipe in here is legit, and it is amazing. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Take with you whenever visiting palaces where fuds are sold. By electricamermerman A must-read for Other Musically Fud Up Gormandizers. I can say I learned alot about cooking and nothing about life.

Since the FUDS parody menu went viral through the Brooklyn foodie scene, then the broader food world and the even broader Internet in 2012, people have been clamoring for the recipes behind those menu items. (Well, actually, no, they haven't, because most of them consisted of baffling nonsense words [Mini-hrak cuddles with malonies] or otherwise sounded disgusting [Dead dog co-plated with yam clippings and a leafy sage dumping.] Oftentimes, both.) BUT. People HAVE been clamoring for more of the deliciously absurd humor that characterizes the FUDS brand. And since that spot-on menu send-up, the young comedians behind it have spun out an entire "cookbook and field guide." Here are tips on planning a seasonal menu that's likely to make your guests ill; tips on kitchen safety that could leave your sous-chefs badly charred. And, of course, recipes for all the FUDS classics: Roundeye Flank Stringers with a Yankee-Poisoned Marinara and Fuzzy Rice Curds, Shitty Chicken Spanked with Cinnamon-Garlic Dirt and Dimpled with a Freshwater Whale-Tit Sauce . . . and the cult classic Bill Clinton Sandwich! The cookbook is designed and illustrated with a straight face--with a foreword by master chef Mario Batali--perfectly balancing the anarchic humor suffusing this parody. Your pretentious foodie friend has been asking for it: introduce them to the wonderful world of FUDS.

"One of the 100 Funniest Things in the History of the Internet." GQ "Tear-jerkingly hilarious." Gawker "Pitch-perfect." The Feed on BonAppetit.com "This may just be the funniest thing I have ever seen . . . It's perfect." VH1.com About the Author Alfredo and Antonio Mizretti are the most buzzed-about young food entrepreneurs in Brooklyn, and completely fictional. Mario Batali has nothing nice to say about them, but for some reason agreed to write the foreword. He is a real chef, restaurateur, and author, with a Michelin star to his name. The real authors of the FUDS cookbook are: Kelly Hudson, a writer and producer for Adultswim.com; Dan Klein, a writer for Funny or Die, and Arthur Meyer, a writer for The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon. All three lived in Brooklyn, until Dan had to move to L.A.
