KimThis thirteenth installment of the "Garfield" comics includes The Caped Avenger having Odie as a sidekick (there's an error in 8/29/1985, but I hope you don't mind it), a night at the movies, triple-coupon day, a small dog with sharp teeth, Garfield's "lucky special stick", a canopy kitty bed, a boring day of fishing, Garfield's "Believe it or Don't!", another visit to the vet, the world's largest ball of twine, golfing with Jon, Garfield's attempt to write a book, a trio of rats, and Garfield Odie in a playground. We're getting close to the Golden Age of "Garfield", so Food for Thought isn't really that special. But there are still tons of hilarious gags and ironic humor roaming around here, so it's not horrible, either.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Garfield always has food on his mindBy C.G.Garfield food for thought is AWESOME AWESOME AWESOME. This book has a bunch of seens from the TV Show called "Garfield and friends". This is a GREAT book, this book is awesome awesome awesome. Did I mention this book is awesome?0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy P. RoseExcellent book, funny and amazing.

It's not that he doesn't have plenty to think about. Garfield could ponder the fact that he's the most popular cat in feline history. He could even examine his soul to discover why he's so funny, so mean to Odie, so nice to Nermal, and so exasperating and lovable to Jon. But he'd probably just prefer to think about food....

About the Author Jim Davis was born on July 28, 1945, in Marion, Indiana. He later attended Ball State University in Muncie, Indiana, where he distinguished himself by earning one of the lowest cumulative grade point averages in the history of the university. (Incidentally, a fellow classmate named David Letterman earned the other). The Garfield strip was born on June 19, 1978, syndicated in forty-one U.S. newspapers. Today it's syndicated in more than 2,100 newspapers worldwide with more than 200 million readers, leading Guinness World Records to name Garfield The Most Widely Syndicated Comic Strip in the World. Davis has had many successes with Garfield, including four Emmy Awards for Outstanding Animated Program and induction into the Licensing Hall of Fame (1998), but his most prized awards are from his peers in the National Cartoonist Society: Best Humor Strip (1981 and 1985), the Elzie Segar Award (1990), and the coveted Reuben Award (1990) for overall excellence in cartooning.
