New and Improved with 52 Fewer Comics By Bill Peschell would love to give it five stars--certainly the strips deserve it--but the publisher cheapened the product by not putting a separate page in for Sunday. Some pointy-haired-boss at Andrews McMeel probably got a bonus for cutting 52 pages out of the calendar. Next year, I'll go back to the Pearls Before Swine calendar. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. My husband often says his best part of the day is flipping the page on ... By D. A. Hunt My husband often says his best part of the day is flipping the page on these at work. I have been getting them for him for the last 6 or 7 years. He loves them. He shares them, and he uses them as scrap paper in the end, and laughs again. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Three Stars By mayrespondek Really was not what I was looking for.

Welcome to the Wilcox household where you'll encounter your typical, everyday family headed by a put-upon, mild-mannered ad exec named Rob. In his charge are Satchel, an often-confused Sharpei-lab mix, and Bucky, a cat about as demented as you're likely to find. Together, they not only humorously occupy the same house, but also the hilarious comic strip Get Fuzzy, found on each page of this calendar. Despite all the craziness and mayhem, it's a place where you'll definitely want to make yourself at home.

About the Author Get Fuzzy first appeared in newspapers in 1999. Darby Conley lives in Boston, with four cats and three boxes of Band-Aids.
