God was just practicing When He Made Men....By susieI bought this for a member of Kathryn Tucker Windham's family who has not sampled her work before, other than the "ghost" books. I have read much of her work and think it is all good, but haven't sampled this one as I bought as gift.3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. ALL of her work is worth buying!By Ala TerraI have bought, I think, 4 books, many CD's, and ALL of them were hilarious. We love listening to her on long rides or just going around the corner. Turn it up! Excellent read. Anyone, north, south, east, or west, will love these books and CD's. She tells funny stories of critters, her neighbors, childhood friends, and heart warming stories of her family. She loved her daddy so much and they had such good times together. When you listen or read, it's like she is talking directly to you! Buy 1 CD and you'll understand and you will NOT be disappointed!

Down in Thomasville, Alabama, a long time ago ... Kathryn Tucker Windham's mellifluous Southern voice guides us by words alone through a town where a parrot sings along with the doxology at church and the telephone operator can tell you anything you need to know. We meet fascinating folks Mose T, who paints a mighty fine sunflower

From AudioFile Volume 5 in the series What Makes Us Southerners contains the kind of homespun stories you'd expect to hear sitting on the front porch sipping lemonade. The quietly amusing pieces are filled with details of a unique time and place: homemade peppermint ice cream, a telephone operator who knows the numbers of everyone in town, the story of how an upset stomach came to be called the "BDT's," a girl who tries to kiss her own elbow in order to become a boy. Kathryn Tucker Windham is a natural storyteller with a twinkle in her well-modulated voice. Friendly and inviting, this tape is likely to rouse the curiosity of listeners of all ages about their own family tales. E.S. © AudioFile 2002, Portland, Maine-- Copyright © AudioFile, Portland, Maine
