Christoph Paul, Arthur Graham : Great White House before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Great White House:

If that's ok, read away!By Abby GeigerWhat can one say about Chinese weather controllers and genetically-altered Great White sharks attacking the White House, other than S.I.L.L.Y.—'So I Lollod a Little, Yes!' Not meant to be a serious work of literature (really?) the book is exactly what it appears to be: an over-the-top, ridiculous story along the lines of recent Jaws-spoofing shark movies. I wasn't surprised they're actually trying to make it into a movie, and have to admit it would make for better viewing than reading. Not particularly well-written, it's probably better-enjoyed by people familiar with American politics and politicians, and is mercifully short. I got it for free, read it for fun, and have no complaints. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. A grim portent of things to come. By D. Joseph Thorne Great White House reads like your best friend's recap of last week's South Park episode. The plot is a joke - literally. Great White House doesn't pretend to be something it's not. Christoph Paul and Brody Thomas blend Washington humor and pop culture into a satirical hybrid before feeding it to the sharks, one career politician at a time. If you're looking for high brow, political satire, you'll find it elsewhere (or maybe those jokes eluded me because my brow is too low). If you're looking for a "grind house read" that's less social commentary and more gratuitous gore, Great White House is for you. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Funny, Over-The-Top, but Hasty By Troy Blackford A deliberately out-of-control, weird premise taken to extremes. Funny premise with a lot of funny jokes, particularly if you are at all knowledgeable about American politics. That said, I was uncomfortable with some passages: like how the Chinese President screeches "You pay now! You pay now!" multiple times. The implication that Cuban Americans are genetically hardwired for raft rides was also a bit much. Could have done with a bit more editing. Really raucous and over-the-top spoof. Funny but also a bit hasty seeming. A quick read though and definitely unique!

Emergency. Red Level Emergency. If any American, government agent, or citizen receives this message, please share it with loved ones, other citizens, and any government official in your vicinity. Washington, DC was flooded by weather-modulated storms and infiltrated by genetically modified sharks. All of our Navy and home bases were hit by these storms, which we are certain were related to the shark attacks. The White House is surrounded by great white sharks. It is now ... a Great White House.
