By babs2215I recently read this book not because I have breast cancer but because I had the privilege of going to school with Wendi and her twin brother Tim. Reading this book it is not only inspirational but informative. Having had friends that have had breast cancer and having had the scare of breast cancer myself I am going to share this book as not only a true experience of the thoughts and feelings that a person goes through while battling this terrible disease but as a resource to turn to for answers. Although Wendi lost her battle with this terrible disease on the second go round I know that she did not go without a fight.

By S. SpranklinHanging Out With Lab Coats is an excellent book filled with numerous resources and lots of humor. This book would be a wonderful and much appreciated gift for anyone who has been recently diagnosed or who has had a loved one recently diagnosed. Ms. Pedicone does an outstanding job of being honest and real about her diagnosis and also includes her family's honest reactions to her diagnosis and treatment. The added benefit of this book, is that it is filled to the brim with many, many resources. Hanging Out With Lab Coats is an entertaining, real life account and also an excellent resource guide!

Wendi Fox Pedicone became a cancer statistic in August 2004 when she was diagnosed with advanced stage breast cancer. With a tremendous amount of support, she triumphed over the disease. Her book, Hanging Out With Lab Coats, chronicles her journey as she shares her personal story and passes along helpful resource information she gathered along the way.
