James Carr, Archana Kumar : Hipster Hitler before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Hipster Hitler:

I'm not a hipster so I had trouble understanding some of it.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Item sent does not appear in new conditionBy KanjiThe product was a gift. It is clearly not in new condition. There are marks on the edges of the covers and peeling thin plastic with dark spots on the spine.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Ha-ha!

It's a mockery to the nth degree!By PamelaThat is some very clever funny business right there!

In a competition of the most hated memes of modern times, "Hipster" has now caught up with "Hitler." Artists James Carr and Archana Kumar thought, why not combine the two? After all, Hitler was indeed a hipster of his time, a failed artist in Vienna scrounging up extra dollars or kroner painting quick architecture scenes for the tourists. In their heavily trafficked website, "hipsterhitler.com," these comic artists posit a new sort of history in which Hitler, wears Silverlake-trendy glasses, thrift store sweaters, and outspoken T-shirts, and the reader begins to quickly understand the history of Hitler in a new and strangely engaging way. The Feral House book of Hipster Hitler includes a few dozen pages of comics heretofore unseen online.

"From the Springtime For Hitler sequence in The Producers to the Downfall meme, Hitler gags work because, darn it, that guy had it coming to him." - The Webcomic Overlook
