Sparrow : Republican Like Me: A Diary of My Presidential Campaign before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Republican Like Me: A Diary of My Presidential Campaign:

Politics. Poetry. How could Sparrow not have beaten Dole for the '96 GOP nomination? Find out in REPUBLICAN LIKE ME, a hilarious document of the vociferous and impassioned campaign trail of a socialist poet. "So I wasn't going to run in '96, until Pat Buchanan won New Hampshire. For 10 days, the Leftist Agony came over me -- the certainty that "Bakunin was right! The Elite does wish to extinguish us!" I saw vividly a White Supremacist Army occupying the White House, closing our borders, and setting up Christian Re-Education Camps. I knew I must act surely and swiftly. So on March 4 at the Fez, an upscale nightclub in Downtown Manhattan, I declared my candidacy for the Republican nomination ... "One of the funniest men in Manhattan ... Over and above everthing else, Sparrow offers something to believe in" -- Robert Christgau, Village Voice. Sparrow is also the author of the poetry collection HELL SOUP (Manic D Press).
