school language arts teacher daughter. She's going to love it :)

This collection features beloved classics such as: Sweet Bread Farts, where Nicks special talent is having the gas he passes smell like freshly baked maple bars; Tonys Tiny Bladder, where a boy with a tiny bladder goes from disgraced pants-wetter to superhero; and Sammy Squirrels Tragic Picnic, where Sammy Squirrel and his animal friends are enjoying a tasty picnic until a speeding truck puts an end to their fun. The author turns the world on its head to find humor in the oddest of places. Illustrations by Duncan Beedie bring to life the wonderfully twisted world of taunting floaters, adventurous boogers, untimely sneezes and squirrels in imminent danger. Rhymes My Mother Never Told Me includes; Sweet Bread Farts Sammy Squirrels Tragic Picnic When I sleep, I drool A Baby and his Coffee The Epic Tale of Nates Booger Egg Salad Toes Jimmy vs. The Floater The Impact of Old Age on Jack, Who Was Once a Nimble Boy The Poop Between Her Toes An Untimely Sneeze The 7th Planet Big Bird and Barney Makeshift Candle The Zit on the Wart on My Chin Idunno Idontcare Underwear Art Nose Hair Back Splash Sniffer the Dog Distinctive Chins Urinal Cakes An Older Sisters Perspective Santas Annual Check-up My Spleen Does Very Little Scab Picker (and Eater) Tonys Tiny Bladder Misplacing Baby Emily While Finding a Deal on Beef Stew

About the Author Author W.J. Burkland is a first time author. He is a recognized expert and ardent practitioner of all bodily functions celebrated in this collection. Each rhyme is a thinly disguised fictional account of real-life events that have shaped the authors life. Illustrator Duncan Beedie is a freelance illustrator who lives in Bristol, UK and has infinitely more credibility than the author, having performed real work for real clients like BBC Three, CBBC, and Aardman Animations.
