He makes us look at concepts in new ways - and not always the way the rest of the world intended! His alternate view of reality sometimes makes you think, but always makes you chuckle, as in "I never saw it that way before!"

Science is something we can't do without as well as something we often don't understand. This collection of essays does absolutely nothing to help with that problem. With his background as a medical librarian, nurse, freelance writer and information geek, the author takes a humorous look at science, medicine, writing, business, the exciting world of libraries, and whatever else catches his fleeting attention.
