Pat Hagan : Seasonal Disorder: Ranger Tales from Glacier National Park before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Seasonal Disorder: Ranger Tales from Glacier National Park:

5 of 5 people found the following review helpful. Laughed out loudBy Catherine Van De VeerI bought this book because I met the author and found him to be one of the funniest people I have ever met. I was not disappointed when I got my copy and read a chapter each night...smiling myself to sleep. The stories are of the modified tall tale type and convey a sense of humanity through each situation created. Most of us have or have had jobs. Most of us have seen the humor in our work whether we love it (as he does) or not. Pat connects with the part of the reader that knows that , often, we don't need to take everything quite as seriously as we do. He connects with the rascal in us. I like that. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Quick Fun Read By Joe Very short and quick read. But fun reading and worth the price. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. great to read on a camping trip By Paula J Frazee A really hilarious book, great to read on a camping trip.

Claiming there's too much to explore and discover in Glacier National Park that you can't do it all in one season, Park Ranger Pat Hagan returns every summer, year after year. While some people suffer from Season Affective Disorder (SAD), Hagan says he suffers from "Seasonal Disorder" (SD), a type of depression that results during the remaining seasons-which are: Almost Winter, Winter, Still Winter and Construction. Seasonal Disorder is about spending summer in paradise-for as long as you can make it last.

About the Author Because he can't hold down a regular job, Pat Hagan has worked for the last 19 summers as a Seasonal Naturalist in Glacier National Park. He's slowly letting go of the idea of growing up, and behaving like normal people his age. He's quite happy to live in the "Never-Never Land" of Glacier National Park, among the wild creatures and wild lands that constantly surprise and always inspire. In the dark, he looks just like Brad Pitt.
